STAPLES BANK RAIDERS FLEE WITH $25,000

Germany Regards Hoover Debt Plan as in Force

IS ABSTAINING FROM PAYMENTS OF REPARATIONS

BRITAIN, ITALY, FRANCE REGARDED FAVORABLE TO PROPOSITION

BELGIUM, HOWEVER, HAS BEEN SILENT ON THE SUBJECT

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 15—(U.P.)—Government officials said today that Germany regards the Hoover plan in force and is abstaining from all reparations payments.

Germany, an official said, will not make the one month's unconditional payment of 51,000,000 marks "normally" due today.

German officials said Britain and Italy recently had declared their renunciation of the unconditional payments, while France yesterday informed Ambassador Walter E. Edge, that Paris did not expect Germany to pay. Belgium has been silent on the subject.

The question of continuance of deliveries in kind and delivery of German railway bonds to the International bank on account that an equivalent sum be given Germany immediately as a loan, will be left to the experts conference starting in London Friday, German officials said.

The uncertain temper of the people is such that the authorities are inclined to fear the effect of the reopening of the banks tomorrow.

It was learned today that Monday's run on the Berlin Municipal Savings bank resulted in withdrawal of 4,070,000 marks, out of total deposits of 478,000,000 marks.

Employes of all the smaller banks received their semi-monthly salaries in full today, in cash. It is reported the 7,000 employes of the closed Danat bank will receive their salaries "in full" tomorrow, but in the form of warrants on the Municipal Savings bank.

Trade union headquarters announced today a slight increase in unemployment in the building and allied trades, in which 1,100,000 workers out of 2,000,000 already are jobless. The significance of this announcement lies in the fact that decrease of employment in the building trades usually begins only in November.

The cabinet was working today on two decrees, which were to be promulgated later. The first was for the regulation of banking transactions after the reopening of the banks tomorrow. Experts were evolving the technical provisions of the decree, which will stipulate the percentage of savings which each depositor will be permitted to withdraw.

All sums required for wages and salaries will have priority.

The second decree, to which the cabinet consents following the insistence of foreign financiers, notably those of the United States, will establish rigid control over all purchase and sale of foreign currency in Germany. It was learned that the chief feature of this decree is a provision establishing a monopoly by the Reichsbank in all such transactions.

NOBILE IS NOT OPTIMISTIC IN POLAR QUEST

TO FIND TRACES OF 6 OR OF ROALD AMUNDSEN WHO WAS LOST

Moscow, July 15—(U.P.)—Gen. Umberto Nobile, who will sail into the polar regions on the Russian Ice-Breaker "Malygin" in the "million-to-one-chance" of shedding light on the fate of the six victims of the Italia tragedy of 1928, together with the lost explorer, Roald Amundsen, arrived today.

"I am not optimistic," Nobile told the United Press today, "but if there is the slightest chance of discovering anything relating to their fate, it is my duty to go."

The Malygin will leave Archangel July 18 under command of Professor V. U. Vieze, and will head directly for Franz-Joseph land, and thence to the polar basin, and eastward to the northern portion of the Kara sea.

On the return trip the ice-breaker will stop at Novaya Zemlya and Kolguyev island.

A forlorn hope exists that Roald Amundsen, who disappeared while he was seeking to aid the victims of the Italia disaster, may have found his way to Rudolph Island, where it is believed a cache of food existed, of which the explorer had knowledge.

Morrison County to Build New Jail

Little Falls, Minn., July 15.—(U.P.)—A tax levy of $35,000 will be added to the present jail fund of $16,000 for the construction of a county jail and sheriff's residence, it was announced today.

The new structure was voted at a meeting of the county commissioners and will replace the old jail which is being torn down. The county board will study preliminary sketches on August 4.

Nation's Railroads Tell of Depleted Income as They Appeal For Freight Rate Increase

HEARING OF I. C. C. CROWDED WITH RAIL AUDITORS

SAYS RAILWAYS ONLY MADE A FAIR LIVING DURING PAST DECADE

By H. O. THOMPSON

Washington, July 15—(U.P.)—The nation's railroads, opening their fight for increased freight rates brought to the Interstate Commerce Commission today a story of depleted earnings and of financial distrust which they said had lessened their ability adequately to serve the public.

The commission's hearings on the railroads petition for a 15 per cent general increase in freight rates and charges began with the main hearing room crowded with auditors.

Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, director of the bureau of railway economics, was the first witness for the carriers. He said that despite the most rigorous economy and greatest operating efficiency the railroads had not been able to make a fair living during the past decade.

Henry W. Bikle, acting as general counsel for the railroads, said before calling Parmalee that the railroads had amended their original petition for a 15 per cent general freight rate increase to except coal and coke. The railroads desire to maintain existing differentials on coal and coke.

Parmalee said the railroads had reached the limit of their ability to cope with economic conditions over which they have no control.

"The declining revenue per ton mile and the sharp drop in traffic have brought a reduction in revenue greater than savings due to increased efficiency and economy of operation," Parmalee said.

The relationship of fixed charges to railway credit was discussed by Parmelee.

"Fixed charges were earned 2.05 times in 1925, 2.18 times in 1926, 1.97 times in 1927, 2.14 times in 1928, and 2.28 times in 1929. The average of the five years from 1925 to 1929 was 2.1 times fixed charges. Fixed charges were earned only 1.76 times in 1930.

Parmalee said if all factors remained equal, fixed charges in 1931 would be earned only 1.27 times.

HURRICANE WARNING IS SENT OUT FOR THE LOUISIANA COAST

Washington, July 15.—(U.P.) — The weather bureau issued a hurricane warning today. A tropical disturbance of apparently moderate intensity was moving inland over the Louisiana coast with its center near Morgan City.

New Orleans, La., July 15. — High winds sweeping the Gulf Coast endangered small shipping today, with the center of the disturbance reported near Morgan City, La.

Electric light wires were blown down in parts of New Orleans, while high tides broke over seawalls along the Mississippi coast. Boats in Lake Pontchartrain were battered by the storm, and fishing boats held to harbor today.

Storm warnings were hoisted.

NEW ATTEMPT MADE TO FLY THE ATLANTIC OCEAN

GEORGE ENDRES AND ALEXANDER MAGYAR LEAVE HARBOR GRACE

FLIGHT HAS NEW MOTIVE, MADE FOR POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

Harbor Grace, N. F., July 15—(U.P.)—Another attempt to fly the Atlantic began today when George Endres and Alexander Magyar, Hungarians, left with the intention of flying to Budapest. The start was at 11:25 A. M. E. S. S. T.

The flight differed from numerous other attempts chiefly in that it was undertaken, not merely for the adventure or to advertise a motor oil or tooth paste, but as political propaganda.

The plane is named Justice for Hungary and the object of the flight, as explained by its backer, Emil Szalay, a meat packer of Flint, Mich., is to "call attention to Hungary's wrongs particularly under the Trianon treaty."

Conditions for the start of the flight were favorable, the fliers said they expected to make the crossing in 26 hours from Harbor Grace.

GEO. GRIFFITHS HEADS STATE OIL INSPECTION DEPT.

REPLACES HJALMER NILLSON, WHO HELD POST SINCE ITS START

N. A. TROVATTEN, STATE AGRICULTURAL COMMISSIONER, MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

St. Paul, Minn., July 15—(U.P.)—Geo. Griffiths, Minneapolis, today was named as head of the state oil inspection department, replacing Hjalmer Nillson, St. Paul, who held that post since its inception.

H. A. Trovatten, state agricultural commissioner, today announced the appointment in a statement to the United Press.

Griffiths' appointment had been predicted and caused much comment. He will take office August 1. The statement follows:

"For the reason that my time should be devoted to the development of the state department of agriculture, dairy and food and to the enforcement of laws directly allied with agriculture and to assist in the marketing of Minnesota products, I am turning over the responsibility of the entire oil inspection division to George Griffiths. He will assume his dutes August 1 and will relieve Hjalmer Nillson."

Nillson because of his long record with the oil inspection division had many friends in the state.

MICHAEL CASEY FAILS TO BET ON HIS LONG SHOTS

Kansas City, July 15—(U.P.)—State Sen. Michael Casey has some good race horses, but it's costing him heavily to find it out.

He shipped Drastic Delight, a 3-year-old, to Latonia, but the horse was such a long shot that not even its owner would back up his faith with money. So Casey won nothing when Drastic Delight took first yesterday, paying $267 on a $2 ticket.

Last week, Drastic Water, another of Casey's horses, paid $165 on a $2 ticket, and in that case, too, the senator had failed to bet.

MUSSOLINI GIVES VIEWS ON ARMS LIMITATION PARLEY

PRESENCE OF U. S. AT CONFERENCE WILL BE GUARANTEE OF ITS SUCCESS

HOOVER'S MORATORIUM PROPOSALS FIRST STEP IN SOLVING ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

Editor's Note—Robert J. Bender, vice-president and general news manager of the United Press was received in audience by Premier Benito Mussolina of Italy after the recent arrival of Secretary of State Stimson in Rome and following conversations which Stimson had with Mussolini and Dino Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister. During interview, the Duce gave the United Press a striking statement of his feelings on the arms limitation conference to be held at Geneva next February. The interview is particularly timely and interesting in view of general European economic situation and in light of the fact that Secretary Stimson will continue in Paris and Berlin his "soundings" of sentiment among leading European statesmen on the arms limitation question.

By ROBERT J. BENDER
General News Manager, United Press
(Copyright 1931 by United Press)

Rome, July 15—(U.P.)—"The presence of the United States of America at the disarmament conference in 1932 is the most formidable guarantee of its success," Premier Benito Mussolini said to me in a private interview granted after his important conversations on disarmament with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. "I do not think Mr. Hoover's moratorium proposals are the final solution of the world's economic problems, they are the first step.

"Without the United States," Mussolini said earnestly, " the disarmament conference would be a failure—just as so many other conferences have been failures on this side of the Atlantic."

The Duce, dressed in white, appeared relaxed as he sat at his desk in his private office, a room about the size of a city lot, in the Palazzo Venezia. The desk lamp threw into sharp relief his striking face and big white-encircled eyes. It was 7:30 in the evening, and Mussolini had just concluded receiving a group of 100 Rotarians. He toyed with a pair of shears throughout the conversations, his small serpent ring attracting attention.

"The United States," he resumed slowly, "is the most powerful country in the world. Its influence is bound to tell."

The premier pursed his lips and nodded his head seriously as he fixed staring eyes on his interviewers.

"The decision to be represented and to take an active part in the proceedings is the greatest concrete step disarmament has had.

"America can put it over by pounding with hammer blows until disarmament is an accomplished fact.

"This has got to be."

"There is no other road if western civilization is to live. As we stand before 1932, we are facing a great uncertainity. On our decision depends the future of the world.

"If we decide for peace, we will have saved humanity. If we decide for war we will plunge the world into chaotic disaster."

In response to a query as to whether President Hoover's moratorium proposal had yet shown any benefits and how far it constituted a solution to the present economic crisis, Mussolini replied:

"Already the restorative effects of President Hoover's proposal for a moratorium have made themselves evident. Unemployment is decreasing in Germany and there are signs of resumption. The same is true in Italy and even in the United States. England is slow in starting, but the way is now open and there is a promise of normalcy.

"We even think we are much worse off than we really are. It takes some time for us really to believe our eyes that things are getting better because we have been thinking negatively all

PUSH THROUGH CROWD OF PEOPLE ON STREET AFTER EXECUTING ROBBERY

A Northern Pacific payroll of approximately $25,000 today was seized by five members of a bandit gang who terrorized three officials and eight customers, including the chief of police, in a daylight holdup of the First National Bank of Staples.

The bandits, apparently working on a well laid plan, carried out their hold-up through the midst of a busy crowd. Six customers entered the bank during the hold-up and were forced to lie on the floor with the other victims.

Four of the bandits covered those inside the bank with automatic pistols while a fifth sat at the wheel of a large sedan with the engine running. When the signal to escape was given the bandits brushed through a crowd in front of the bank and drove rapidly away. One vigilante, hurrying to the bank, fired at the escaping automobile and missed.

Only two of the bandits entered the bank at the outset of the robbery. Flourishing their guns and abusively ordering two customers and three bank officials, K. R. Nims, vice president; K. T. Barrett, cashier and J. R. Johnson, assistant cashier to "lie on the floor" the bandits searched the cash drawers and safe.

Nims was ordered to open the vault and was threatened several times for not hurrying. Customers of the bank entered during the holdup and additional bandits on guard outside the bank followed them in and helped cover them.

Chief of Police Ed Britton was conferring with Nims when the bandits first entered and was forced to lie on the floor with the others.

Staples is a division point of the Northern Pacific railroad and the bandits apparently knew that the payroll was in the bank, Nims said. County officials and the state bureau of criminal apprehension notified sheriffs in surrounding counties and a cordon was spread around the area.

The automobile in which the bandits escaped was described as a large blue sedan with yellow wire wheels.

More than a score of the townspeople said they would be able to identify the bandits, all of whom were well dressed. The five robbers were middle aged, it was said, and were described as "tough customers."

While in the bank the bandits were abusive.

"They were a foul mouth lot," Nims said, "and would have just as soon shot us as looked at us."

The bandit car was seen to head west on a county road and it was thought it might be heading for the vicinity of Wadena. Police of the Twin Cities were on the lookout for the bandits, however, on the possibility they have started west to throw pursuers off the track.

The holdup was the fourth within a week in the northwest. Two bandits robbed the White Bear Bank of $800 Tuesday. Other holdups within the last seven days included banks in Cameron, Wis., and Yankton, S. D.

Similarity between the Yankton robbery, and today's holdup led authorities to investigate the possibility that the same gang perpatrated both crimes.

NEIGHBORS OBJECT TO NEGRO'S RESIDENCE IN THE DISTRICT

Minneapolis, Minn., Juy 15.—(U.P.)—Threats of violence and stoning of the home of A. A. Lee, negro postoffice clerk, last night marked the fourth consecutive night of demonstrations by a crowd of neighbors who objected to Lee's occupancy in their neighborhood.

Police were called upon to disperse the mob and not until threats of arrest were made would the embattled neighbors go home. Twenty-five policemen were forced to surround the house to protect the Lee family.

Neighbors claimed that Lee has been unreasonable when they have sought to buy his house. Lee has asked for consideration because he fought in the world war.

MUSSOLINI GIVES VIEWS ON ARMS LIMITATION PARLEY

PRESENCE OF U. S. AT CONFERENCE WILL BE GUARANTEE OF ITS SUCCESS

HOOVER'S MORATORIUM PROPOSALS FIRST STEP IN SOLVING ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

Editor's Note—Robert J. Bender, vice-president and general news manager of the United Press was received in audience by Premier Benito Mussolina of Italy after the recent arrival of Secretary of State Stimson in Rome and following conversations which Stimson had with Mussolini and Dino Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister. During interview, the Duce gave the United Press a striking statement of his feelings on the arms limitation conference to be held at Geneva next February. The interview is particularly timely and interesting in view of general European econmic situation and in light of the fact that Secretary Stimson will continue in Paris and Berlin his "soundings" of sentiment among leading European statesmen on the arms limitation question.

General News Manager, United Press

Rome, July 15—(U.P.)—"The presence of the United States of America at the disarmament conference in 1932 is the most formidable guarantee of its success," Premier Benito Mussolini said to me in a private interview granted after his important conversations on disarmament with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. "I do not think Mr. Hoover's moratorium proposals are the final solution of the world's economic problems, they are the first step.

"Without the United States," Mussolini said earnestly, " the disarmament conference would be a failure—just as so many other conferences have been failures on this side of the Atlantic."

The Duce, dressed in white, appeared relaxed as he sat at his desk in his private office, a room about the size of a city lot, in the Palazzo Venezia. The desk lamp threw into sharp relief his striking face and big white-encircled eyes. It was 7:30 in the evening, and Mussolini had just concluded receiving a group of 100 Rotarians. He toyed with a pair of shears throughout the conversations, his small serpent ring attracting attention.

"The United States," he resumed slowly, "is the most powerful country in the world. Its influence is bound to tell."

The premier pursed his lips and nodded his head seriously as he fixed staring eyes on his interviewers.

"The decision to be represented and to take an active part in the proceedings is the greatest concrete step disarmament has had.

"America can put it over by pounding with hammer blows until disarmament is an accomplished fact.

"This has got to be."

"There is no other road if western civilization is to live. As we stand before 1932, we are facing a great uncertainity. On our decision depends the future of the world.

"If we decide for peace, we will have saved humanity. If we decide for war we will plunge the world into chaotic disaster."

In response to a query as to whether President Hoover's moratorium proposal had yet shown any benefits and how far it constituted a solution to the present economic crisis, Mussolini replied:

"Already the restorative effects of President Hoover's proposal for a moratorium have made themselves evident. Unemployment is decreasing in Germany and there are signs of resumption. The same is true in Italy and even in the United States. England is slow in starting, but the way is now open and there is a promise of normalcy.

"We even think we are much worse off than we really are. It takes some time for us really to believe our eyes that things are getting better because we have been thinking negatively all

PUSH THROUGH CROWD OF PEOPLE ON STREET AFTER EXECUTING ROBBERY

A Northern Pacific payroll of approximately $25,000 today was seized by five members of a bandit gang who terrorized three officials and eight customers, including the chief of police, in a daylight holdup of the First National Bank of Staples.

The bandits, apparently working on a well laid plan, carried out their hold-up through the midst of a busy crowd. Six customers entered the bank during the hold-up and were forced to lie on the floor with the other victims.

Four of the bandits covered those inside the bank with automatic pistols while a fifth sat at the wheel of a large sedan with the engine running. When the signal to escape was given the bandits brushed through a crowd in front of the bank and drove rapidly away. One vigilante, hurrying to the bank, fired at the escaping automobile and missed.

Only two of the bandits entered the bank at the outset of the robbery. Flourishing their guns and abusively ordering two customers and three bank officials, K. R. Nims, vice president; K. T. Barrett, cashier and J. R. Johnson, assistant cashier to "lie on the floor" the bandits searched the cash drawers and safe.

Nims was ordered to open the vault and was threatened several times for not hurrying. Customers of the bank entered during the holdup and additional bandits on guard outside the bank followed them in and helped cover them.

Chief of Police Ed Britton was conferring with Nims when the bandits first entered and was forced to lie on the floor with the others.

Staples is a division point of the Northern Pacific railroad and the bandits apparently knew that the payroll was in the bank, Nims said. County officials and the state bureau of criminal apprehension notified sheriffs in surrounding counties and a cordon was spread around the area.

The automobile in which the bandits escaped was described as a large blue sedan with yellow wire wheels.

More than a score of the townspeople said they would be able to identify the bandits, all of whom were well dressed. The five robbers were middle aged, it was said, and were described as "tough customers."

While in the bank the bandits were abusive.

"They were a foul mouth lot," Nims said, "and would have just as soon shot us as looked at us."

The bandit car was seen to head west on a county road and it was thought it might be heading for the vicinity of Wadena. Police of the Twin Cities were on the lookout for the bandits, however, on the possibility they have started west to throw pursuers off the track.

The holdup was the fourth within a week in the northwest. Two bandits robbed the White Bear Bank of $800 Tuesday. Other holdups within the last seven days included banks in Cameron, Wis., and Yankton, S. D.

Similarity between the Yankton robbery, and today's holdup led authorities to investigate the possibility that the same gang perpatrated both crimes.

NEIGHBORS OBJECT TO NEGRO'S RESIDENCE IN THE DISTRICT

Minneapolis, Minn., Juy 15.—(U.P.)—Threats of violence and stoning of the home of A. A. Lee, negro postoffice clerk, last night marked the fourth consecutive night of demonstrations by a crowd of neighbors who objected to Lee's occupancy in their neighborhood.

Police were called upon to disperse the mob and not until threats of arrest were made would the embattled neighbors go home. Twenty-five policemen were forced to surround the house to protect the Lee family.

Neighbors claimed that Lee has been unreasonable when they have sought to buy his house. Lee has asked for consideration because he fought in the world war.

A Word to Dad

Are you and your son pals? Or are you drifting apart? Would he rather be with someone else than with you?

Is your son interested in the farm, in doing things well?

Why not prepare him to become a partner with you?

Let him join a 4H club. Help him to get a calf, a sow, or a bunch of chickens. He will get more business experience if you don't give it to him. Let him pay for his animal out of his savings or earnings.

Club work is a practical way for a boy to learn something useful.

Help provide an interest for the boy at home. There is no place that means as much for a boy as home, if it is a place where father and son are friends, where they talk things over with each other and where mother counts more than any other woman in the world.

Club work is for the boy, but it often is worth as much to mother and dad.

Help your boy to get interested in club work, you will not be sorry.

GILBERT LAKE

The recent hail storm damaged the rye crop on the E. L. Dorsette farm to such extent that it is being cut for hay. Howard Spencer is doing the work. Harold Johnson with his crew are also putting up hay on this farm. The hail hurt to some extent, the more advanced of the other crops, and did considerable damage to Mr. H. J. Walters' house.

The county commissioners at their meeting July 13th took up the matter again of opening the recently established road on the section line between the south half of Sections 21 and 22, but it was found that no funds were available for the purpose, and deferred action until next year.

C. Skillings and his crew are making good progress improving the cross road from Beaver Dam road to No. 19.

The monthly meeting of Gilbert Lake Farm Bureau Unit will be at Gordon school house next Friday evening at 8 o'clock, July 17. A short program will be rendered. A fine 10c lunch will be served. A speaker from the outside has been secured for the evening, his subject being "Cooperation, Farms and Farming." After the talk, the meeting will be thrown open for discussion. Everybody invited.

At the Wildwood Sunday school it was decided to attend the picnic next Sunday at South Long Lake with the group gathering of Sunday schools.

The rains frequently cut dangerous pockets at the sides of the tarvia roads on No. 3 and 19. Since no maintenance men are on these roads, these places have to await action of the state or county repair crew, and naturally, some of these holes remain open for some time. Everyone driving a car should take warning and watch the sides of the roads, at the same time we hope the "road hog" wont use that as an excuse to keep in the middle.

Everybody, whether they have children or not, should make it a point to be at the annual school meetings which comes next week. You have no kick coming unless you do your duty to attend these meetings and help to get the most out of our schools. This does not necessarily mean high or low priced teachers. There are other things in these days to be considered.

Your correspondent was misinformed last week about Billy Lovsted being overcome by the heat, it was appendicitis. But all's well that ends well and Billy is to be congratulated on being so well on the road to recovery.

Miss Stella Spencer had the misfortune to have her ankle injured by a thorn. She is now at the hospital with blood poisoning.

INGENIOUS PROCESS STOPS VARIATION IN FLAVOR OF COFFEE

Wonderful Flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee Is the Same in Every Pound

Many people have wished for a coffee that didn't vary in flavor. Hills Bros. Coffee is such a coffee. It is roasted by the patented, Controlled Roasting process that absolutely prevents variation!

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so the exquisite, unvarying flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time.

Controlled Roasting is different from the ordinary method of roasting several hundred pounds at once. The results—as a cup of Hills Bros. Coffee shows—are very different too! There is a refreshing smoothness that no other coffee has, because no other is roasted the same way. And remember, this marvelous flavor never varies!

Hills Bros. Coffee is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which makes coffee go stale, is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale! Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

All that were present met at the Gordon school, and stopped for lunch at noon at Mrs. John Gibson's home, Parkerville. All the members of both clubs were present, and each one brought their own lunch. A total of 35 children, leaders and visitors attended the event, and Miss Anderson, county club agent and E. G. Roth, county agent, also were there. Twelve homes were visited and all the club work was found to be progressing very well, each one looking forward to Achievement Day

Daggett Brook 4-H club met Tuesday, July 6 at the Harvey Britton home, with all the club members and 10 visitors present. Mildred Vanderwerker exhibited a beautiful bouquet of sweet peas, as a part of her home beautification project. All the members planned to attend the Achievement Day of the St. Mathias and Oak Hill 4-H clubs, which was held Monday, July 13, at the Steve Tougas home. Daggett Brook 4-H club will have their tour on Tuesday, August 4, and everyone is to meet at the Wm. Maust home.

The Oak Hill 4H Club held a meeting at Ray Cook's home on Friday, July 3. Problems of keeping records were discussed. Miss Anderson was present, and told of coming club events, also about some of the interesting demonstrations that some of the clubs are giving.

The members of the Nokay Lake Go-Getters 4H Club held their Club Tour on Wednesday, July 1. Most of the projects are doing fine. A picnic dinner had been planned on after the tour, but because of rain, dinner was eaten at Pointons. A business meeting was held after dinner. A program and pie social was planned for July 25 at the town hall.

The Swanburg 4H Club held a regular meeting at the home of Henry Rud. All members were present and also 15 visitors. After roll call was taken and minutes of the previous meeting read by the secretary, the club pledge was given by the members. Songs, such as, "America", "We're Forever Boosting Club Work", "The More We Get Together", and "Get Acquainted" were sung by all. It was planned to have a club tour on Tuesday, July 14, and picnic dinner will be held at Henry Johnstone's place.

A Word to Dad

Are you and your son pals? Or are you drifting apart? Would he rather be with someone else than with you?

Is your son interested in the farm, in doing things well?

Why not prepare him to become a partner with you?

Let him join a 4H club. Help him to get a calf, a sow, or a bunch of chickens. He will get more business experience if you don't give it to him. Let him pay for his animal out of his savings or earnings.

Help provide an interest for the boy at home. There is no place that means as much for a boy as home, if it is a place where father and son are friends, where they talk things over with each other and where mother counts more than any other woman in the world.

Club work is for the boy, but it often is worth as much to mother and dad.

Help your boy to get interested in club work, you will not be sorry.

GILBERT LAKE

The recent hail storm damaged the rye crop on the E. L. Dorsette farm to such extent that it is being cut for hay. Howard Spencer is doing the work. Harold Johnson with his crew are also putting up hay on this farm. The hail hurt to some extent, the more advanced of the other crops, and did considerable damage to Mr. H. J. Walters' house.

The county commissioners at their meeting July 13th took up the matter again of opening the recently established road on the section line between the south half of Sections 21 and 22, but it was found that no funds were available for the purpose, and deferred action until next year.

C. Skillings and his crew are making good progress improving the cross road from Beaver Dam road to No. 19.

The monthly meeting of Gilbert Lake Farm Bureau Unit will be at Gordon school house next Friday evening at 8 o'clock, July 17. A short program will be rendered. A fine 10c lunch will be served. A speaker from the outside has been secured for the evening, his subject being "Cooperation, Farms and Farming." After the talk, the meeting will be thrown open for discussion. Everybody invited.

At the Wildwood Sunday school it was decided to attend the picnic next Sunday at South Long Lake with the group gathering of Sunday schools.

The rains frequently cut dangerous pockets at the sides of the tarvia roads on No. 3 and 19. Since no maintenance men are on these roads, these places have to await action of the state or county repair crew, and naturally, some of these holes remain open for some time. Everyone driving a car should take warning and watch the sides of the roads, at the same time we hope the "road hog" wont use that as an excuse to keep in the middle.

Everybody, whether they have children or not, should make it a point to be at the annual school meetings which comes next week. You have no kick coming unless you do your duty to attend these meetings and help to get the most out of our schools. This does not necessarily mean high or low priced teachers. There are other things in these days to be considered.

Your correspondent was misinformed last week about Billy Lovsted being overcome by the heat, it was appendicitis. But all's well that ends well and Billy is to be congratulated on being so well on the road to recovery.

Miss Stella Spencer had the misfortune to have her ankle injured by a thorn. She is now at the hospital with blood poisoning.

Wonderful Flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee Is the Same in Every Pound

Many people have wished for a coffee that didn't vary in flavor. Hills Bros. Coffee is such a coffee. It is roasted by the patented, Controlled Roasting process that absolutely prevents variation!

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so the exquisite, unvarying flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time.

Controlled Roasting is different from the ordinary method of roasting several hundred pounds at once. The results—as a cup of Hills Bros. Coffee shows—are very different too! There is a refreshing smoothness that no other coffee has, because no other is roasted the same way. And remember, this marvelous flavor never varies!

Hills Bros. Coffee is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which makes coffee go stale, is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale! Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

Who Pays?

How the gods must have laughed back there in 1919 when half-hysterical allies, fever-flushed with "victory," were parading hither and yon, gesticulating above "peace" tables and shouting from the housetops of the world that "Germany must pay!" says the Omaha World-Herald.

"Germany," they cried, "started this war and now Germany must pay—pay to the uttermost dollar!" They were babes crying for the moon, those statesmen. Spoiled children, puffed up by what they stupidly took for triumph. They had, they thought, won the war!

They and all the world know better today. Nobody can win a war except war. War whips them all. Wars are paid for, all right, but not by one nation paying another nation. All the nations pay war. The nations today are paying. God knows how long they will continue to pay. The first installment was paid in blood. And now we are paying in gold. Blood and gold, gold and blood! What staggering amount the bill will finally come to in disease and disillusionment and despair no one knows.

But Germany isn't paying any more than those who "crushed" Germany. Like Samson, in shoving the pillars out from under their enemy, they crushed themselves. The world went down in a heap in those four mad years and when the dust and smoke had been wafted at last away, nobody was on top. They were all down there together, gasping for breath, bleeding from wounds that will not heal in this generation. What good can come out of a thing so rotten and evil and hopeless as war? What "victory" can emerge from four years of universal defeat?

Is it possible that all this can happen again? Will men again tramp singing down the street? Will the nations again, some day, strike up the bands? Will men throw flame again? And, when they are all dead or exhausted, when the gas clouds again have lifted, will they talk of making somebody pay?

Bank Bandit Law Operates in Ohio

OHIO'S new law to put bank bandits where they will not longer attempt to rob those institutions again gave good account of itself in the Higginsport bank holdup, in which the Bowman boys, Ohio "talent," and their Texas pal were captured, confessed on hearing, and were all sentenced to the penitentiary for life—the cases being disposed of within a week from the attack upon the bank, says the Coumbus Dispatch.

Prosecutor J .H. Houston is a vigilant and energetic official, and evidently has a court that is not inclined to permit delay or technicalities. It was a bank robbery projected on the terrorized town plan, in which the bandits sought to drive officials and citizens to cover by first shooting up the village, and then to sweep the bank clean of its currency at their leisure. But the Higginsport people were not as timid as the bandits supposed, for they were greeted with a fusillade of shots as they emerged with their loot from the bank and the eyes of their pursuers were not taken from the fleeing trio until they were all in the hands of the law and their booty returned to the bank.

Ohio never has been good ground for crime of this kind and now that the officers of the law have a statute by which gentry of this kind can be permanently laid away in prison, it is decidedly dangerous business. A bystander was fatally shot as the robbers fled, and an attempt will be made to convict them of murder while in the perpetration of a felony, which will, of couse, mean death in the electric chair for all three bandits.

But as the case stands the bandits are under life imprisonment sentences, and there are few escapes from incarceration there, except such as are effected by working upon the sympathies of tender-hearted clemency officials. It was a good day's work.

Bank Bandits Well Organized

THE bank bandits have again started operations in central Minnesota. Hitherto only Ironton and Pequot had been objects of their work, but today they spread southward and centered on the First National Bank of Staples.

That the bandits operating at Staples were old hands is evident in the quick and thorough manner in which they operated. In spite of many customers in the bank, of others entering, and the crowd outside, the bandits preserved their cool front and nerve and went through every phase of the robbery according to their well laid plans.

It had a touch of irony in the situation as the chief of police, present at the bank, was among the customers ordered to lie on the floor. The vigilante system failed to function and but one of them appeared in evidence, according to news reports, firing at the escaping automobile and missing. A well placed shot would have damaged tires or punctured the gasoline tank.

All the state seems to have been notified within 15 minutes of the occurrence. On all sides lookout is being maintained for the bandit car and gang. However, by heading west or north they may seek to bury themselves in out of the way places in the lake country. That procedure seems to have been followed when the Pequot bank was robbed about a year ago.

High Speed in High Temperatures

TRAVELING at high speed in high temperatures is not conducive to safety, as manifested by the car accident yesterday which claimed two lives.

Heat causes additional wear and tear on tires and machinery. Blowouts are more frequent. A blowout on a large car equipped with the usual balloon tires almost always causes damage to car and possible injury to occupants. The sudden swerve heads a car for the ditch or upsets it on the road.

In hot weather be as considerate of your car as you are of your own health. And also remember that heat affects the driver of a car as well as the machinery. Records compiled by various press associations indicate that accidents climb to a high peak in hot weather, as heat enervates one and causes vigilance to relax.

Annual School District Meetings

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH correspondent at Gilbert Lake calls attention to the annual school meetings in the rural districts which are held July 21. These are important and everyone should attend. The time to suggest changes and improvements, to act on budgets and other matters, to discuss affairs of the district, are at these meetings.

ADVERTISING to be most effective must be consistent and continuous. New customers arrive daily on the scene and must be educated to use and demand your product.

Murder in Fire Death

Charred almost beyond recognition, the body of Mrs. Marion Day Berrien, Texas beauty, was discovered in the fire-swept ruins of her home in one of the most exclusive sections of Forest Hills, L. I., smart New York residential suburb. With the finding of the body, authorities were presented with a mystery that may equal the Snyder-Gray case. Although the beauty, 30 years old and widow of a naval officer, might have met her death accidentally, murder was hinted in the preliminary investigation. The partly destroyed home of Mrs. Berrien is shown with the ex-stage star in insert.

Dave Ordway finds love and adventure when his plane crashes in the orange groves owned by beautiful Joan Marbury. He loves Joan but her reserve is impenetrable. Her cousin, Sally, however, is obviously in love with Dave. Gerry Flemming, Talbot Henderson and Barbara Holworthy, Dave's former fiancee, visit him. Barbara is hostile toward the girls. Under cover of darkness, Dave leaves, with Gerry and Talbot, to even a score against Mueller, neighboring plantation owner, who, in reality, is Snatch Cazzoni, a bootlegger. Mueller tried to force his attentions upon Joan and also robbed Dave and destroyed his plane. Planning to steal Mueller's plane to replace Dave's, the boys come upon a hangar containing four planes, and also discover a liquor-cutting plant. Figures loom in the darkness. Dave grapples with the nearest one. It is Joan. Unable to resist, they kiss. Heedless of danger, the girls had followed but are ordered back. On the way, Barbara, in revenge, pretends to hear Dave calling Joan. Joan goes back in search of him accompanied only by her colored mammy. Mueller finds them. At the plantation, Sally and Talbot cannot understand Barbara's nervousness.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SALLY hesitated, glancing from Talbot to the open door. Then, her obligations as a hostess weighing upon her, she reluctantly rose and entered the house. Barbara, standing beside a mahogany pie crust table, was lighting another cigarette. Her jade-green eyes, as she stared at Sally, were no longer insolent; they were frightened, pleading.

"Is Mueller really as beastly as he looks?" she asked abruptly.

"Yes," said Sally, flatly. "Why?"

Barbara flung herself into a chintz-covered wing chair and smoked violently for the space of a dozen heartbeats. Then she pushed herself out of the chair.

"Would he really harm Joan if he had the opportunity?" she persisted.

The Confession.

"What are you talking about?" demanded Sally, suddenly aware of the terror in Barbara's eyes.

Barbara drew a long breath and tried to meet Sally's straightforward gaze, but her eyes shifted miserably.

"I've done something rather horrible, Sally," she whispered. "And now I'm sorry and afraid."

"What have you done?" asked Sally, quietly.

"I told Joan that Dave was calling her," Barbara confessed, in a voice hardly more than a whisper.

"You what?" gasped Sally, not understanding.

"I sent Joan back into that empty house. Dave may not have been there."

"Do you mean to tell me that you sent her straight into Mueller's hands?"

"I—I—" Barbara's courage oozed out of her. "She may have found Dave," she finished lamely.

Sally was silent for an instant, surveying Barbara with black eyes in whose depth the other read infinite contempt.

"So that's the kind of a sneaky, cowardly, spiteful cat you are, is it?" she demanded, scornfully. "If that's what yachts and maids and pretty clothes do to one, I'll remain poverty-stricken for the rest of my life. At least I'll be able to sleep at night without loathing myself! You knew very well what sort of man Mueller was. You were studying him at the dinner table; I saw you. You knew that the boys were out there getting him all stirred up. What has Joan ever done to you that you should want to do a thing like that?"

"She has taken Dave away from me, Sally," Barbara said simply. "Dave was mine. He's always been mine, ever since I can remember. We've had our little fights—we've always had them, but they never meant anything. At first I thought that he was in love with you, then I saw the way he looked at your cousin and I knew it was she he loved. And I saw him kiss her back there in that abandoned house."

A Woman Scorned.

"Dave isn't a necker," Barbara continued, "and when I saw that I was just too desperate to care what I did just so long as I got him away from her and from this terrible place."

"Do you think Dave would go back to you now?" asked Sally, slowly. "Just tell him what you've done to Joan and see."

"If I could get him back to civilization," said Barbara dully, "and put him among the people and the things he's always known, this would seem like a nightmare."

"And to get him away you'd give Joan to Mueller," said Sally, wonderingly. "How could he have ever loved a girl like you? If you've done this, you've done many other mean and selfish things. I don't believe he's ever loved you, ever. I know him better than you do, even if you've thought you've known him all your life. He's too fine and honest and unselfish to ever love anyone who could think and talk and act the way you do. No, he never loved you. He was just used to you. And, not knowing any other girls, well, he thought we were all like you!"

The muffled throbbing of a motor car sounded from the road. Barbara turned abruptly and ran out of the room. At the edge of the porch she hesitated, starting out toward the road. The purring of the engine faltered and died away.

"Gerry," she called, her voice shrill with anxiety. "Are Dave and Joan with you?"

Sally, following Barbara to the steps, saw Gerry's black figure making its unsteady way up the gravel path.

"Gerry, you fool!" cried Barbara sharply. "Answer me! Are Dave and Joan with you?"

"Had an argument with Dave," he answered thickly. "Said you all had to go to St. Petersburg or somewhere. Rotten shame. I'm all wound up like an Ingersoll, ready to go ticking all over the place. Now I got to play bus driver. Fine night for fight. Moon all lit up. So am I. Come, on, let's go places."

"Gerry, please listen," begged Barbara. "Where are the others?"

"What others?" asked Gerry, vaguely. "Dave's scouting through the groves and having all the fun. Who—what others are you talking about?"

"Joan and Hannah!" snapped Sally, sharply. "Where did you leave them?"

"Didn't leave them anywhere. Didn't even see them," asserted Gerry, standing at the foot of the steps and teetering gently from toe to heel. "Talbot was supposed to take them home."

Barbara caught her breath.

"If that's what yachts and maids and pretty clothes do to one, I'll remain poverty stricken for the rest of my life," said Sally.

"Quick, Gerry," she gasped. "Turn your car around. We must go back and find them."

To The Rescue.

Talbot gripped her arm.

"What's all this about?" he demanded shortly.

"Joan thought she heard Dave's voice," explained Sally. "So she went back to find him. Hannah is with her."

Barbara dared to breathe again. It had not occurred to her that Sally would protect her. She had taken the black-haired girl for a shallow, selfish child who would delight in turning the three boys against her. Now she was grateful for the darkness which hid her own flaming cheeks.

"Let me get this straight," said Talbot, gravely. "Joan and the darky are back there at the abandoned house, perhaps in Mueller's hands. Is that right?"

Sally nodded.

"Come on, Gerry," snapped Talbot, "you're going to get all the action now your drunken heart desires. Get your car turned around. Quick, now!"

"Well," he grinned, "what are you waiting for?"

Who Pays?

How the gods must have laughed back there in 1919 when half-hysterical allies, fever-flushed with "victory," were parading hither and yon, gesticulating above "peace" tables and shouting from the housetops of the world that "Germany must pay!" says the Omaha World-Herald.

"Germany," they cried, "started this war and now Germany must pay—pay to the uttermost dollar!" They were babes crying for the moon, those statesmen. Spoiled children, puffed up by what they stupidly took for triumph. They had, they thought, won the war!

They and all the world know better today. Nobody can win a war except war. War whips them all. Wars are paid for, all right, but not by one nation paying another nation. All the nations pay war. The nations today are paying. God knows how long they will continue to pay. The first installment was paid in blood. And now we are paying in gold. Blood and gold, gold and blood! What staggering amount the bill will finally come to in disease and disillusionment and despair no one knows.

But Germany isn't paying any more than those who "crushed" Germany. Like Samson, in shoving the pillars out from under their enemy, they crushed themselves. The world went down in a heap in those four mad years and when the dust and smoke had been wafted at last away, nobody was on top. They were all down there together, gasping for breath, bleeding from wounds that will not heal in this generation. What good can come out of a thing so rotten and evil and hopeless as war? What "victory" can emerge from four years of universal defeat?

Is it possible that all this can happen again? Will men again tramp singing down the street? Will the nations again, some day, strike up the bands? Will men throw flame again? And, when they are all dead or exhausted, when the gas clouds again have lifted, will they talk of making somebody pay?

Bank Bandit Law Operates in Ohio

OHIO'S new law to put bank bandits where they will not longer attempt to rob those institutions again gave good account of itself in the Higginsport bank holdup, in which the Bowman boys, Ohio "talent," and their Texas pal were captured, confessed on hearing, and were all sentenced to the penitentiary for life—the cases being disposed of within a week from the attack upon the bank, says the Coumbus Dispatch.

Prosecutor J .H. Houston is a vigilant and energetic official, and evidently has a court that is not inclined to permit delay or technicalities. It was a bank robbery projected on the terrorized town plan, in which the bandits sought to drive officials and citizens to cover by first shooting up the village, and then to sweep the bank clean of its currency at their leisure. But the Higginsport people were not as timid as the bandits supposed, for they were greeted with a fusillade of shots as they emerged with their loot from the bank and the eyes of their pursuers were not taken from the fleeing trio until they were all in the hands of the law and their booty returned to the bank.

Ohio never has been good ground for crime of this kind and now that the officers of the law have a statute by which gentry of this kind can be permanently laid away in prison, it is decidedly dangerous business. A bystander was fatally shot as the robbers fled, and an attempt will be made to convict them of murder while in the perpetration of a felony, which will, of couse, mean death in the electric chair for all three bandits.

But as the case stands the bandits are under life imprisonment sentences, and there are few escapes from incarceration there, except such as are effected by working upon the sympathies of tender-hearted clemency officials. It was a good day's work.

Bank Bandits Well Organized

THE bank bandits have again started operations in central Minnesota. Hitherto only Ironton and Pequot had been objects of their work, but today they spread southward and centered on the First National Bank of Staples.

That the bandits operating at Staples were old hands is evident in the quick and thorough manner in which they operated. In spite of many customers in the bank, of others entering, and the crowd outside, the bandits preserved their cool front and nerve and went through every phase of the robbery according to their well laid plans.

It had a touch of irony in the situation as the chief of police, present at the bank, was among the customers ordered to lie on the floor. The vigilante system failed to function and but one of them appeared in evidence, according to news reports, firing at the escaping automobile and missing. A well placed shot would have damaged tires or punctured the gasoline tank.

All the state seems to have been notified within 15 minutes of the occurrence. On all sides lookout is being maintained for the bandit car and gang. However, by heading west or north they may seek to bury themselves in out of the way places in the lake country. That procedure seems to have been followed when the Pequot bank was robbed about a year ago.

High Speed in High Temperatures

TRAVELING at high speed in high temperatures is not conducive to safety, as manifested by the car accident yesterday which claimed two lives.

Heat causes additional wear and tear on tires and machinery. Blowouts are more frequent. A blowout on a large car equipped with the usual balloon tires almost always causes damage to car and possible injury to occupants. The sudden swerve heads a car for the ditch or upsets it on the road.

In hot weather be as considerate of your car as you are of your own health. And also remember that heat affects the driver of a car as well as the machinery. Records compiled by various press associations indicate that accidents climb to a high peak in hot weather, as heat enervates one and causes vigilance to relax.

Murder in Fire Death

Charred almost beyond recognition, the body of Mrs. Marion Day [illegible] beauty, was discovered in the fire-swept ruins of her home in one of the [illegible] exclusive sections of Forest Hills, L. I., smart New York residential suburb. With the finding of the body, authorities were presented with a mystery that may equal the Snyder-Gray case. Although the beauty, 30 years old and widow of a naval officer, might have met her death accidentally, murder was hinted in the preliminary investigation. The partly destroyed home of Mrs. Berrien is shown with the ex-stage star in insert.

Dave Ordway finds love and adventure when his plane crashes in the orange groves owned by beautiful Joan Marbury. He loves Joan but her reserve is impenetrable. Her cousin, Sally, however, is obviously in love with Dave. Gerry Flemming, Talbot Henderson and Barbara Holworthy, Dave's former fiancee, visit him. Barbara is hostile toward the girls. Under cover of darkness, Dave leaves, with Gerry and Talbot, to even a score against Mueller, neighboring plantation owner, who, in reality, is Snatch Cazzoni, a bootlegger. Mueller tried to force his attentions upon Joan and also robbed Dave and destroyed his plane. Planning to steal Mueller's plane to replace Dave's, the boys come upon a hangar containing four planes, and also discover a liquor-cutting plant. Figures loom in the darkness. Dave grapples with the nearest one. It is Joan. Unable to resist, they kiss. Heedless of danger, the girls had followed but are ordered back. On the way, Barbara, in revenge, pretends to hear Dave calling Joan. Joan goes back in search of him accompanied only by her colored mammy. Mueller finds them. At the plantation, Sally and Talbot cannot understand Barbara's nervousness.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SALLY hesitated, glancing from Talbot to the open door. Then, her obligations as a hostess weighing upon her, she reluctantly rose and entered the house. Barbara, standing beside a mahogany pie crust table, was lighting another cigarette. Her jade-green eyes, as she stared at Sally, were no longer insolent; they were frightened, pleading.

"Is Mueller really as beastly as he looks?" she asked abruptly.

"Yes," said Sally, flatly. "Why?"

Barbara flung herself into a chintz-covered wing chair and smoked violently for the space of a dozen heartbeats. Then she pushed herself out of the chair.

"Would he really harm Joan if he had the opportunity?" she persisted.

The Confession.

"What are you talking about?" demanded Sally, suddenly aware of the terror in Barbara's eyes.

Barbara drew a long breath and tried to meet Sally's straightforward gaze, but her eyes shifted miserably.

"I've done something rather horrible, Sally," she whispered. "And now I'm sorry and afraid."

"What have you done?" asked Sally, quietly.

"I told Joan that Dave was calling her," Barbara confessed, in a voice hardly more than a whisper.

"You what?" gasped Sally, not understanding.

"I sent Joan back into that empty house. Dave may not have been there."

"Do you mean to tell me that you sent her straight into Mueller's hands?"

"I—I—" Barbara's courage oozed out of her. "She may have found Dave," she finished lamely.

Sally was silent for an instant, surveying Barbara with black eyes in whose depth the other read infinite contempt.

"So that's the kind of a sneaky, cowardly, spiteful cat you are, is it?" she demanded, scornfully. "If that's what yachts and maids and pretty clothes do to one, I'll remain poverty-stricken for the rest of my life. At least I'll be able to sleep at night without loathing myself! You knew very well what sort of man Mueller was. You were studying him at the dinner table; I saw you. You knew that the boys were out there getting him all stirred up. What has Joan ever done to you that you should want to do a thing like that?"

"She has taken Dave away from me, Sally," Barbara said simply. "Dave was mine. He's always been mine, ever since I can remember. We've had our little fights—we've always had them, but they never meant anything. At first I thought that he was in love with you, then I saw the way he looked at your cousin and I knew it was she he loved. And I saw him kiss her back there in that abandoned house."

A Woman Scorned.

"Dave isn't a necker," Barbara continued, "and when I saw that I was just too desperate to care what I did just so long as I got him away from her and from this terrible place."

"Do you think Dave would go back to you now?" asked Sally, slowly. "Just tell him what you've done to Joan and see."

"If I could get him back to civilization," said Barbara dully, "and put him among the people and the things he's always known, this would seem like a nightmare."

"And to get him away you'd give Joan to Mueller," said Sally, wonderingly. "How could he have ever loved a girl like you? If you've done this, you've done many other mean and selfish things. I don't believe he's ever loved you, ever. I know him better than you do, even if you've thought you've known him all your life. He's too fine and honest and unselfish to ever love anyone who could think and talk and act the way you do. No, he never loved you. He was just used to you. And, not knowing any other girls, well, he thought we were all like you!"

The muffled throbbing of a motor car sounded from the road. Barbara turned abruptly and ran out of the room. At the edge of the porch she hesitated, starting out toward the road. The purring of the engine faltered and died away.

"Gerry," she called, her voice shrill with anxiety. "Are Dave and Joan with you?"

Sally, following Barbara to the steps, saw Gerry's black figure making its unsteady way up the gravel path.

"Gerry, you fool!" cried Barbara sharply. "Answer me! Are Dave and Joan with you?"

"Had an argument with Dave," he answered thickly. "Said you all had to go to St. Petersburg or somewhere. Rotten shame. I'm all wound up like an Ingersoll, ready to go ticking all over the place. Now I got to play bus driver. Fine night for fight. Moon all lit up. So am I. Come, on, let's go places."

"Gerry, please listen," begged Barbara. "Where are the others?"

"What others?" asked Gerry, vaguely. "Dave's scouting through the groves and having all the fun. Who—what others are you talking about?"

"Joan and Hannah!" snapped Sally, sharply. "Where did you leave them?"

"Didn't leave them anywhere. Didn't even see them," asserted Gerry, standing at the foot of the steps and teetering gently from toe to heel. "Talbot was supposed to take them home."

Barbara caught her breath.

"If that's what yachts and maids and pretty clothes do to one, I'll remain poverty stricken for the rest of my life," said Sally.

"Quick, Gerry," she gasped. "Turn your car around. We must go back and find them."

To The Rescue.

Talbot gripped her arm.

"What's all this about?" he demanded shortly.

Barbara dared to breathe again. It had not occurred to her that Sally would protect her. She had taken the black-haired girl for a shallow, selfish child who would delight in turning the three boys against her. Now she was grateful for the darkness which hid her own flaming cheeks.

"Let me get this straight," said Talbot, gravely. "Joan and the darky are back there at the abandoned house, perhaps in Mueller's hands. Is that right?"

Sally nodded.

"Come on, Gerry," snapped Talbot, "you're going to get all the action now your drunken heart desires. Get your car turned around. Quick, now!"

"Well," he grinned, "what are you waiting for?"

BROOKLYN NOTICES LOSS OF THREE OF ITS CASTOFF PLAYERS

JIM ELLIOTT, HARVEY HENDRICH, JAKE FLOWERS

ELLIOTT PITCHES FOR PHILADELPHIA, HENDRICHS 1st BASE FOR CINCINNATI

By LEO H. PETERSEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 15—(UP)—If the Brooklyn Robins still had Jim Elliott, Harvey Hendrick and Jake Flowers on their payroll they probably would be heading the parade for the 1931 National league pennant.

Ever since Brooklyn traded and sold the three players to other National league clubs they have done their best when opposing their former teammates. They have been highly successful—so successful in fact that if the games in which they have beaten the Robins this year were placed on the right side of the ledger, Brooklyn would be in first place. But because Elliott is pitching for Philadelphia, Hendrick playing first base for Cincinnati and flowers shortstopping for St. Louis, the Robins are in fourth place, seven games from the leadership.

Elliott in particular has added insult to injury. He has started six games against Brooklyn this year and won five of them. In a series with Cincinnati a month ago the Robins dropped three of four games mostly because Hendrick was hitting the ball with men on bases.

Flowers, who only recently went to the Cardinals, kept up the good work of the Brooklyn cast-offs yesterday when he was largely responsible for St. Louis' 3to 2 victory over the Robins. Flowers scored two runs, got three of the seven hits Dazzy Vance yielded, and paved the way for the winning run in the eight. In that inning Wright messed up his grounder, Watkins forced Flowers but Frisch came through with a triple that brought in the winning tally. The victory increased the Cardinals lead over the second place Giants to five and one half games.

The Giants fell victims to Guy Bush and the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 4. Bush shut out the McGraw clan for eight innigs but weakened in the ninth. It didn't matter, however, for his mates had piled up a big lead off Morrell, a New York rookie. The victory advanced the Cubs to third place, .001 percentage point ahead of Brooklyn.

The Cincinnati infielders, Cuccinello and Stripp, had an off day and their lapses gave the Boston Braves a 3 to 2 victory. Cuccinello fumbled two grounders and Stripp failed to cover third base on a bunt. It gave the Braves a big enough margin for old Tom Zachary to work on.

Pittsburgh climbed to sixth place by taking a twin bill from Philadelphia, 9 to 4 and 4 to 3 in ten innings. The Pirates pounded three hurlers hard to allow Heine Meine to coast to victory in the first game while the second was a pitching duel between Spencer and Collins. Collins lost out in the tenth on pinch hitterBrame's single.

Philadelphia's advantage over Washington for the American league leadership remained at six games. Both teams lost, the Athletics dropping a 12 to 3 decision to Detroit and the Senators coming out on the short end of a 9 to 1 score against the Chicago White Sox.

It took New York and Cleveland to furnish the fireworks in the American league. The Yankees made 19 hits and received 11 bases on balls in the first game of a doubleheader to win 19 to 2. But in the aftermath Mel Harder allowed only eight blows while the Indians supported his hurling with timely hits to win, 5 to 1. During the two games Gehrig and Averill each hit two home runs and Ben Chapman stole three bases. The home runs were the Yankees' first baseman's 24th and 25th of the season and the Indians' outfielder's 17th and 18th while the stolen bases gave Chapman a total of 33 thefts so far this year.

WIZARDRY OF MASTER REVEALED AT TORONTO PLAY

BEFORE 10,000 PERSONS HE DRIVES AND PUTS TO VICTORY

SHOWS AMAZING PERFECTION, DEFEATING BRITISH PROFESSIONAL

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Sports Editor)

Toronto, Ont., July 15—(UP)—The wizardry that Walter Hagen has perfected in his long years of competition again had come to the fore to make him a champion.

Before 10,000 persons, Hagen drove and putted his way over the Mississauga golf course yesterday lifted the ball from treacherous lies and showed an amazing golf perfection to defeat Percy Alliss, British professional, in the 36-hole playoff for the Canadian open golf championship.

Hagen had to be a star to win. He shot a dazzling 68 on the last 18, four under par, and then was able to win by one stroke, the final score for the 36 holes being Hagen 141 and Alliss 142. They finished the regular round Saturday with 282 apiece.

It was the knd of a match that Hagen likes. He was the under dog from the minute the first hole was played. Nothing worked at the start of that match and Alliss, the Britisher, who is professional at a Berlin club, played perfect golf to be three strokes ahead at the end of the first four holes.

From then on Hagen fought. His wood strokes cracked out safe 250 and 260 yards down the fairway. His irons rang true. His putter acted well, occasionally Hagen slipped from grace and got into a rough, a trap or the water. But he came back after every such hole.

A man of lesser steel would have collapsed under Alliss' relentless birdies, pars and even an eagle. Hagen saw a two stroke advantage vanish in the afternoon when the match neared a close.

They played even. Then on the long seventeenth, Hagen placed his second firmly on the green and traced a pretty putt home for a birdie and the one stroke advantage with which he won the match.

SOUTH SIDE TO ATTEMPT VICTORY OVER LAUREL LUNCH TONIGHT

Y. M. C. A. and Southeast played a 4 to 4 tie last night in a city league baseball game.

Anderson started on the mound for Southeast and got by until the fourth inning when he blew up and hit two batters and walked another to fill the bases. Erickson then took the mound and let a run score when he made a wild pitch, but pitched himself out of a bad hole as not another runner scored. Peterson was caught off third and Fitzharris was caught trying to score when Erickson threw to Nelson at first base.

W. Schwendeman made a dandy catch of Gabiou's foul ball back against the grandstand.

GERMAN BOXING FANS VOICING THEIR DISAPPOINTMENT

SCHMELING UNABLE TO DEFEND CHAMPIONSHIP UNTIL NEXT YEAR

SUFFERING FROM EYE INJURY RECEIVED IN BOUT WITH STRIBLING

Berlin, July 15.—(UP)—Germany's boxing fans were disappointed today over Max Schmeling's announcement he would be unable to defend his world's heavyweight championship until next year because of an eye injury received in his bout with Young Stribling.

The German fans, many of whom were skeptical as to Schmeling's right to the world's title, until he knocked out Stribling at Cleveland July 2, had hoped their idol would decisively defeat Primo Carnera in their scheduled September contest to prove beyond all doubt that he justly deserved boxing's greatest crown.

Schmeling, signed to meet Carnera in the United States in September, announced yesterday that Dr. Curt Adams, prominent oculist, had ordered him to refrain from fighting or training "from two to three months at least." That will make it impossible for Schmeling to live up to the contract.

Schmeling dispatched the following cablegram to his Manager Joe Jacobs, in the United States:

"Dear Joe—Professors who examined my eye in which Stribling stuck his thumb say that entire eyeball is affected as result of the iris being badly scratched. Must do no boxing for a long time. Joe, you better make arrangements to come over as soon as possible. Professors were Dr. Adams and Baetner. Best regards—Max."

In his reply, Jacobs advised Max that he would sail for Germany following the Sharkey-Walker fight at Brooklyn, N. Y., July 22.

The eye injury was received, according to Schmeling, in one of the early rounds of the fight when Stribling accidentally stuck his thumb into the left eye.

Bachelors of Baseball

EVERY June the colleges unload a big assortment of bachelors of arts and sciences upon the tough old business and professional world where the going usually is rough indeed for those who would set the world afire with diplomas as combustibles. As to the comparatively few sheepskin toters who enter professional sport, money inducements may be good but the prospects of success slim indeed. Yet major league baseball sharps always scan the college talent and each Summer a half dozen or more campus Babes and Groves get tryouts. Few make the grade, but enough of them have done so to justify scouting the schools in the hopes of discovering another Mathewson, Coombs Collins or Sisler.

This season finds Walter Masters, greatest pitcher the University of Pennsylvania ever had, working out with the Washington Senators after a three-year college record of twenty-five victories and only three defeats. Walter Johnson had his eye on Masters for some time and the "Big Train" will give him much personal instruction. Masters was also a brilliant football back throughout his school career.

Penn also sent its other star twirler—"Big Jim" Peterson—to the Athletics last June. The St. Louis Browns would have liked to try him out but Connie Mack's World Series chances are excellent, and so Peterson decided to go with the A's. "Big Jim's" size appeals especially to Mack, who is inclined to favor tall, powerful pitchers. Though Peterson's record is not as gaudy as Masters', some critics believe "Big Jim" will prove the better hurler after proper seasoning. This may take two or three years, probably with some good minor league team, though Mack may keep him with the A's as he did Jack Coombs, who came from Colby direct to stardom under Connie's coaching. Penn also contributes Rolf Carlsten, infielder, to Baltimore this season.

Most dramatic of all college products is Bruce Caldwell who is the home run marvel of the Eastern League and part owner of the New Haven club. The former Yale football wonder got a tryout with Cleveland two years ago but failed. He's going great guns now and the Brooklyn Robins will give Bruce a trial in the not distant future.

WHILE Tony Canzoneri, who looks like a miniature Babe Ruth, rules the lightweight roost as a true champion, two of his K. O. victims—Al Singer and Jackie "Kid" Berg—are attempting comebacks. Singer looked but fair in outpointing Lew Massey in a 10-rounder at New York City in June but Berg looked his old winning self in kayoing Tony Lambert at Newark recently.

A year tonight, Singer won the lightweight crown by stopping a sad looking Sammy Mandell in the opening round. Al simply tore into what was left of a once great boxer and knocked Mandell cold without being hit himself. Though many noted Sammy's washed-up form even in that brief showing, others acclaimed the popular Al as "another Benny Leonard," among those enthusiasts being the illustrious Leonard himself.

Singer then took on Jimmy McLarnin in a non-titular bout and was knocked out in the third round. That proved Al was hardly a Leonard, and it must have been a terrific blow to his pride as well. About two months later, on Nov. 14, Canzoneri slammed Singer to the canvas for the ten count in the first round. Thus the lightweight title changed hands twice in a little less than four months, both being jig-time knockouts.

Berg—the tough little two-fisted buzz-saw from London's Whitechapel section—had never been kayoed until he met a series of Canzoneri's socks in Chicago last Winter. The Kid had won the junior welterweight crown from "Mushy" Callahan at London early in 1930 and he'd beaten most of America's leading lightweights. But Tony took him in an early round with a K. O. as clean-cut as it was cold.

Berg would like a return match and he may get one, although Billy Petrolle's K. O. victory over Justo Suarez entitles him, it would seem, to the first wallop at the Canzonerian crown this Summer. Berg is one of the ring's genuine gamesters and he has much popular support in his earnest comeback efforts.

BROOKLYN NOTICES LOSS OF THREE OF ITS CASTOFF PLAYERS

JIM ELLIOTT, HARVEY HENDRICH, JAKE FLOWERS

By LEO H. PETERSEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 15—(U.P.)—If the Brooklyn Robins still had Jim Elliott, Harvey Hendrick and Jake Flowers on their payroll they probably would be heading the parade for the 1931 National league pennant.

Ever since Brooklyn traded and sold the three players to other National league clubs they have done their best when opposing their former teammates. They have been highly successful—so successful in fact that if the games in which they have beaten the Robins this year were placed on the right side of the ledger, Brooklyn would be in first place. But because Elliott is pitching for Philadelphia, Hendrick playing first base for Cincinnati and flowers shortstopping for St. Louis, the Robins are in fourth place, seven games from the leadship.

Elliott in particular has added insult to injury. He has started six games against Brooklyn this year and won five of them. In a series with Cincinnati a month ago the Robins dropped three of four games mostly because Hendrick was hitting the ball with men on bases.

Flowers, who only recently went to the Cardinals, kept up the good work of the Brooklyn cast-offs yesterday when he was largely responsible for St. Louis' 3to 2 victory over the Robins. Flowers scored two runs, got three of the seven hits Dazzy Vance yielded, and paved the way for the winning run in the eight. In that inning Wright messed up his grounder, Watkins forced Flowers but Frisch came through with a triple that brought in the winning tally. The victory increased the Cardinals lead over the second place Giants to five and one half games.

The Giants fell victims to Guy Bush and the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 4. Bush shut out the McGraw clan for eight innigs but weakened in the ninth. It didn't matter, however, for his mates had piled up a big lead off Morrell, a New York rookie. The victory advanced the Cubs to third place, .001 percentage point ahead of Brooklyn.

The Cincinnati infielders, Cuccinello and Stripp, had an off day and their lapses gave the Boston Braves a 3 to 2 victory. Cuccinello fumbled two grounders and Stripp failed to cover third base on a bunt. It gave the Braves a big enough margin for old Tom Zachary to work on.

Pittsburgh climbed to sixth place by taking a twin bill from Philadelphia, 9 to 4 and 4 to 3 in ten innings. The Pirates pounded three hurlers hard to allow Heine Meine to coast to victory in the first game while the second was a pitching duel between Spencer and Collins. Collins lost out in the tenth on pinch hitterBrame's single.

Philadelphia's advantage over Washington for the American league leadership remained at six games. Both teams lost, the Athletics dropping a 12 to 3 decision to Detroit and the Senators coming out on the short end of a 9 to 1 score against the Chicago White Sox.

It took New York and Cleveland to furnish the fireworks in the American league. The Yankees made 19 hits and received 11 bases on balls in the first game of a doubleheader to win 19 to 2. But in the aftermath Mel Harder allowed only eight blows while the Indians supported his hurling with timely hits to win, 5 to 1. During the two games Gehrig and Averill each hit two home runs and Ben Chapman stole three bases. The home runs were the Yankees' first baseman's 24th and 25th of the season and the Indians' outfielder's 17th and 18th while the stolen bases gave Chapman a total of 33 thefts so far this year.

WIZARDRY OF MASTER REVEALED AT TORONTO PLAY

BEFORE 10,000 PERSONS HE DRIVES AND PUTS TO VICTORY

SHOWS AMAZING PERFECTION, DEFEATING BRITISH PROFESSIONAL

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Sports Editor)

Toronto, Ont., July 15—(U.P.)—The wizardry that Walter Hagen has perfected in his long years of competition again had come to the fore to make him a champion.

Before 10,000 persons, Hagen drove and putted his way over the Mississauga golf course yesterday lifted the ball from treacherous lies and showed an amazing golf perfection to defeat Percy Alliss, British professional, in the 36-hole playoff for the Canadian open golf championship.

Hagen had to be a star to win. He shot a dazzling 68 on the last 18, four under par, and then was able to win by one stroke, the final score for the 36 holes being Hagen 141 and Alliss 142. They finished the regular round Saturday with 282 apiece.

It was the knd of a match that Hagen likes. He was the under dog from the minute the first hole was played. Nothing worked at the start of that match and Alliss, the Britisher, who is professional at a Berlin club, played perfect golf to be three strokes ahead at the end of the first four holes.

From then on Hagen fought. His wood strokes cracked out safe 250 and 260 yards down the fairway. His irons rang true. His putter acted well, occasionally Hagen slipped from grace and got into a rough, a trap or the water. But he came back after every such hole.

A man of lesser steel would have collapsed under Alliss' relentless birdies, pars and even an eagle. Hagen saw a two stroke advantage vanish in the afternoon when the match neared a close.

They played even. Then on the long seventeenth, Hagen placed his second firmly on the green and traced a pretty putt home for a birdie and the one stroke advantage with which he won the match.

The DAIRY

EXHIBITS HELP TO BRING OUT POINTS

Fall Fairs of Benefit to Dairy Cattle Breeders.

Comparative judging of live stock brings out the weak as well as the strong points of the animal judged and helps the breeder to develop a better grade of stock.

"This is one reason why we advise breeders of dairy cattle to exhibit their animals at the fall fairs," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist. "The show ring is a good place for breeders of pure-bred cattle to compare the merits of their animals. Added to this is the advertising value of a good fair exhibit, which often results in many sales of breeding stock."

Mr. Arey suggests that dairy breeders prepare for showing at least two months before the cattle are to be exhibited. This amount of time is necessary to fit and properly train the cattle, even when in good condition to start with. Each animal should be taught to lead well; to stand squarely on its feet, and hold up its head. Animals that are not well trained and properly fitted usually receive low placings, though they may be good individuals.

It is not difficult to fit an animal for the ring, if it has received good care and feed. Plenty of balanced grain and a mixed hay is needed for feeding. If the hair is long, the animal should be clipped all over six weeks before the first show. Washing about once a week improves the condition of both hide and hair. Neat, shapely horns add much to the appearance. It is also advisable to brush and rub the animal each day. This gives a glossy appearance to the hair.

Mr. Arey further suggests that the switch be washed clean and braided the night before the show. Combed out the next morning it gives a striking, fluffy appearance.

Calves Make Good Use of All Water Supplied

Seven pounds of skimmilk fed twice daily to calves do not contain sufficient water for maximum development, according to Prof. F. B. Morrison of the animal husbandry department of Cornell university. In two trials carried on while he was at the University of Wisconsin there was a striking difference in those calves which had all the water that they wanted twice a day, in addition to skimmilk, compared to those having skimmilk only. The calves receiving the water had better appetites and ate quite a little more concentrates and hay. For the average of the two years, the calves fed 14 pounds of skimmilk daily to six months of age, with a good concentrate mixture and hay, but without additional water, gained only 1.36 pounds daily. Those receiving, in addition, what water they cared to drink twice a day, gained 1.84 pounds. Running water, when available in the barn, makes it easier to give the calves better care and in this way secure cheaper gains.

Care of Pails and Cans

Normally, milk pails and cans are not used immediately after washing. They are generally set away to drain and to dry for a time. This is all right, especially if they are thoroughly dried, for bacteria cannot grow and multiply where there is no moisture. They need air, moisture and food for their growth, the same as other plant life. Remove any one of these factors, and the germs cannot multiply.

The important thing for the dairyman who sells milk or cream or converts these products into butter or cheese on his own farm is to provide a convenient place and an abundance of hot water for washing and rinsing all utensils. Unless this is done, it will be difficult to produce a superior product.

Pasture Not Sufficient

Dairy calves under six months old will not do well on pasture. It takes some time to develop the digestive system of a calf sufficiently to enable it to get a large proportion of needed nutrients from roughage. Grass is a succulent roughage relatively high in water content and therefore relatively low in nutrient content for its bulk. It takes some time for calves to learn to graze pasture grass to the extent that they are able to satisfy their requirements from this bulky roughage. There is advantage in giving calves a grass paddock for exercise but one should not depend on the grass to supply any great portion of needed nutrients.

Eliminating Bacteria

The first two or three streams of milk from each teat contain large numbers of bacteria. Since this milk tests low in fat, it may as well be discarded. A method frequently used is that of milking these few streams into a milking cup fitted with a false cover made of 100-mesh screen. Any traces of "garget" are thus easily detected in the curd particles remaining on the screen. By eliminating these first streams, the initial contamination is greatly reduced.

Every golfer in the country no doubt would like to receive private lessons from Billie Burke, new National Open champion, but, that being practically impossible, here's the next best thing to study. Starting in Young Aviation seems to get 'em both young and old. This child, however, probably can lay rightful claim to being the youngest glider enthusiast in the world. He's pictured in the pilot's seat of a glider at Saint Cyr, France, just as big as life and twice as cute. Judging from the position he has taken the youngster knows what it is all about, too.

The DAIRY

EXHIBITS HELP TO BRING OUT POINTS

Fall Fairs of Benefit to Dairy Cattle Breeders.

Comparative judging of live stock brings out the weak as well as the strong points of the animal judged and helps the breeder to develop a better grade of stock.

"This is one reason why we advise breeders of dairy cattle to exhibit their animals at the fall fairs," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist. "The show ring is a good place for breeders of pure-bred cattle to compare the merits of their animals. Added to this is the advertising value of a good fair exhibit, which often results in many sales of breeding stock."

Mr. Arey suggests that dairy breeders prepare for showing at least two months before the cattle are to be exhibited. This amount of time is necessary to fit and properly train the cattle, even when in good condition to start with. Each animal should be taught to lead well; to stand squarely on its feet, and hold up its head. Animals that are not well trained and properly fitted usually receive low placings, though they may be good individuals.

It is not difficult to fit an animal for the ring, if it has received good care and feed. Plenty of balanced grain and a mixed hay is needed for feeding. If the hair is long, the animal should be clipped all over six weeks before the first show. Washing about once a week improves the condition of both hide and hair. Neat, shapely horns add much to the appearance. It is also advisable to brush and rub the animal each day. This gives a glossy appearance to the hair.

Mr. Arey further suggests that the switch be washed clean and braided the night before the show. Combed out the next morning it gives a striking, fluffy appearance.

Calves Make Good Use of All Water Supplied

Seven pounds of skimmilk fed twice daily to calves do not contain sufficient water for maximum development, according to Prof. F. B. Morrison of the animal husbandry department of Cornell university. In two trials carried on while he was at the University of Wisconsin there was a striking difference in those calves which had all the water that they wanted twice a day, in addition to skimmilk, compared to those having skimmilk only. The calves receiving the water had better appetites and ate quite a little more concentrates and hay. For the average of the two years, the calves fed 14 pounds of skimmilk daily to six months of age, with a good concentrate mixture and hay, but without additional water, gained only 1.36 pounds daily. Those receiving, in addition, what water they cared to drink twice a day, gained 1.84 pounds. Running water, when available in the barn, makes it easier to give the calves better care and in this way secure cheaper gains.

Care of Pails and Cans

Normally, milk pails and cans are not used immediately after washing. They are generally set away to drain and to dry for a time. This is all right, especially if they are thoroughly dried, for bacteria cannot grow and multiply where there is no moisture. They need air, moisture and food for their growth, the same as other plant life. Remove any one of these factors, and the germs cannot multiply.

The important thing for the dairyman who sells milk or cream or converts these products into butter or cheese on his own farm is to provide a convenient place and an abundance of hot water for washing and rinsing all utensils. Unless this is done, will be difficult to produce a superior product.

Pasture Not Sufficient

Dairy calves under six months old will not do well on pasture. It takes some time to develop the digestive system of a calf sufficiently to enable it to get a large proportion of needed nutrients from roughage. Grass is a succulent roughage relatively high in water content and therefore relatively low in nutrient content for its bulk. It takes some time for calves to learn to graze pasture grass to the extent that they are able to satisfy their requirements from this bulky roughage. There is advantage in giving calves a grass paddock for exercise but one should not depend on the grass to supply any great portion of needed nutrients.

Eliminating Bacteria

The first two or three streams of milk from each teat contain large numbers of bacteria. Since this milk tests low in fat, it may as well be discarded. A method frequently used is that of milking these few streams into a milking cup fitted with a false cover made of 100-mesh screen. Any traces of "garget" are thus easily detected in the curd particles remaining on the screen. By eliminating these first streams, the initial contamination is greatly reduced.

ROAD VICTIMS RETURNED HOME

Highway Accident Takes Second Life as Warner Dies in Hospital Here

NO INQUEST NECESSARY

Huber, First to Die, Had Been Scott County Treasurer for 32 Years

The bodies of two long time friends, heads of families, were returned to Shakopee today for burial from Brainerd, the end of their trail together.

The one, Frank Huber, 71, former county treasurer of Scott county for 32 years, died soon after the car he was driving rolled over on State Trunk Highway No. 27 a short distance north of Ft. Ripley after clipping the fender of a car carrying two Minneapolis men.

His crony on many a fishing party, W. J. Warner, 76, died of a fractured skull and intense shock at the St. Joseph's hospital last evening.

The men received fatal injuries early Tuesday afternoon as they speeded on their way towards Brainerd to fish in the lake region. They were passing the car occupied by D. H. Farrell and Wm. Webber, Minneapolis, going the same direction, when they nicked the front left fender. The Huber car lost control and overturned on the highway. Huber was cut by glass in his left leg. Loss of blood from this wound was attributed to his death.

A few hours after the accident relatives of the two men were in the city. they took them back to Shakopee. they took themn back to Shakopee.

GAS OFFICE TO BE AT 318 SO. SIXTH

Northern States Power to Occupy New Headquarters Starting July 16

FINE BUSINESS GROWTH SEEN

Company Puts 1,050 Customers as Goal by September 15; New Appliance Added

Workmen placed in readiness today the quarters at 318 South 6th street for the reception of the new headquarters in Brainerd of the Northern States Power Co.

The new office opposite Turcotte Brothers and located in the Miracle Block replaces former headquarters at 305 South 8th street, occupied by Northern States since October 1924 when the company purchased the Brainerd Gas and Electric Co.

Business will be conducted through the new office beginning July 16, George W. Sweet, local manager, announced.

The company, in line with its progressive advance, has set as its goal by September 15 a total of 1050 customers locally.

At the present time Northern States serves 990 customers. In its entry here the company started with 350 customers on its lines. The company immediately proceeded to conduct an intensive study of the situation resulting in the installation of modern equipment at the plant, making a duplicate set of gas making equipment and machinery throughout to insure constant and continuous service. Since 1924 two substantial rate reductions have been made, placing Brainerd's rates lower than the majority cities of its size.

The increase in the number of customers tends to establish the fact that gas has long ceased to be a luxury and is now considered one of the most valuable of household servants.

Announcement that a new appliance, "The Electrolux," or "the gas refrigerator" meeting the requirements of the most discriminating has recently been added to the list of household appliances sold and serviced by the Northern States Power Co. was also made by Mr. Sweet.

Several of the new refrigerators have been placed in Brainerd and meet with the approval of the owners, it was learned.

A complete line of modern gas appliances will be on display at the new headquarters beginning July 16.

Mr. Sweet extends, in behalf of the company, a cordial invitation to the public to visit and inspect the new office and show room.

NO INQUEST NECESSARY

GAS OFFICE TO BE AT 318 SO. SIXTH

Northern States Power to Occupy New Headquarters Starting July 16

FINE BUSINESS GROWTH SEEN

Company Puts 1,050 Customers as Goal by September 15; New Appliance Added

Workmen placed in readiness today the quarters at 318 South 6th street for the reception of the new headquarters in Brainerd of the Northern States Power Co.

The new office opposite Turcotte Brothers and located in the Miracle Block replaces former headquarters at 305 South 8th street, occupied by Northern States since October 1924 when the company purchased the Brainerd Gas and Electric Co.

Business will be conducted through the new office beginning July 16, George W. Sweet, local manager, announced.

The company, in line with its progressive advance, has set as its goal by September 15 a total of 1050 customers locally.

At the present time Northern States serves 990 customers. In its entry here the company started with 350 customers on its lines. The company immediately proceeded to conduct an intensive study of the situation resulting in the installation of modern equipment at the plant, making a duplicate set of gas making equipment and machinery throughout to insure constant and continuous service. Since 1924 two substantial rate reductions have been made, placing Brainerd's rates lower than the majority cities of its size.

The increase in the number of customers tends to establish the fact that gas has long ceased to be a luxury and is now considered one of the most valuable of household servants.

Announcement that a new appliance, "The Electrolux," or "the gas refrigerator" meeting the requirements of the most discriminating has recently been added to the list of household appliances sold and serviced by the Northern States Power Co. was also made by Mr. Sweet.

Several of the new refrigerators have been placed in Brainerd and meet with the approval of the owners, it was learned.

A complete line of modern gas appliances will be on display at the new headquarters beginning July 16.

Mr. Sweet extends, in behalf of the company, a cordial invitation to the public to visit and inspect the new office and show room.

the time and living in a low morale with nothing but depression in our minds. It takes us some time to get over that, but once we get our confidence back we will lift our horizon and see a brighter future.

"I do not think Mr. Hoover's proposals are the final solution. They are the first step. Others must come and almost everyone by this time is beginning to realize that disarmament is the overshadowing issue."

Mussolini then pointed to what he regarded as the fruits to be gained through a successful disarmament conference at Geneva.

"The great powers," he said, "can get relief in disarmament. It is the one place where budgets can be sliced without affecting the welfare and happiness of a nation,it being generally understood that all disarm at the same time. If only from an economic viewpoint, disarmament is a pressing necessity and since the average nation spends about one-fourth of its revenues on its military establishment, the value of lightening the burden is evident.

"Not secondary to the immediate economic saving is the guarantee disarmament will mean for a long period of peace. The world is craving a sustained peace. The re-establishment of the normal flow of commerce and the resumption of industry make peace an essential part of the world program."

At this point, Premier Mussolini leaned across the table shaking his shears for emphasis and concluded:

"Do not minimize the situation.

"Resumption must take place because another winter of hardship and misery will plunge Europe into despair.

"Do not forget that where there is dire distress there you find the way open for the germs of bolshevism. In distressing times it is a real danger.

"There are in Germany today over 6,000,000 persons unemployed and if that number increases next winter we should be face to face with communism. Bear in mind that in the last elections the German communist party polled over 6,000,000 votes, and upon distress and suffering the bolshevist germ is best fed."

The Duce rose from his chair.

"We are now at the parting of the ways for modern civilization," he said. "This is the last stand. Upon our decision rests the life or death of our great inheritance."

Fulfils Ambition

Ambitious as a boy to go to sea, W. H. Turnquist (above) suffered a setback when he was caught in the Titanic disaster on almost his first voyage. Mexican Protest Frees Consul

Engaging the attention of the Mexican Government, which has transmitted a strong protest to Washington, the jailing of Adolfo Dominguez (upper left), Mexican consul at Chicago, on a charge of contempt of court, holds the threat of serious international complications even though he was released after a few hours in jail and the order committing him was expunged from court records. Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green (lower right) sentenced Senor Dominguez for contempt when the two men participated in a verbal clash in the former's courtroom. A few hours later, Judge Joseph Burke (lower left) released the Mexican consul. To avoid further complications, Judge Green expunged his order sentencing Senor Dominguez, but the latter's counsel, T. Russell Baker (upper right) maintains that such an order does not constitute satisfaction and that an official apology may be demanded.

the time and living in a low morale with nothing but depression in our minds. It takes us some time to get over that, but once we get our confidence back we will lift our horizon and see a brighter future.

"I do not think Mr. Hoover's proposals are the final solution. They are the first step. Others must come and almost everyone by this time is beginning to realize that disarmament is the overshadowing issue."

Mussolini then pointed to what he regarded as the fruits to be gained through a successful disarmament conference at Geneva.

"The great powers," he said, "can get relief in disarmament. It is the one place where budgets can be sliced without affecting the welfare and happiness of a nation,it being generally understood that all disarm at the same time. If only from an economic viewpoint, disarmament is a pressing necessity and since the average nation spends about one-fourth of its revenues on its military establishment, the value of lightening the burden is evident.

"Not secondary to the immediate economic saving is the guarantee disarmament will mean for a long period of peace. The world is craving a sustained peace. The re-establishment of the normal flow of commerce and the resumption of industry make peace an essential part of the world program."

At this point, Premier Mussolini leaned across the table shaking his shears for emphasis and concluded:

"Do not minimize the situation.

"Resumption must take place because another winter of hardship and misery will plunge Europe into despair.

"Do not forget that where there is dire distress there you find the way open for the germs of bolshevism. In distressing times it is a real danger.

"There are in Germany today over 6,000,000 persons unemployed and if that number increases next winter we should be face to face with communism. Bear in mind that in the last elections the German communist party polled over 6,000,000 votes, and upon distress and suffering the bolshevist germ is best fed."

The Duce rose from his chair.

"We are now at the parting of the ways for modern civilization," he said. "This is the last stand. Upon our decision rests the life or death of our great inheritance."

Fulfils Ambition

Ambitious as a boy to go to sea, W. H. Turnquist (above) suffered a setback when he was caught in the Titanic disaster on almost his first voyage. Apparently, however, his resolve was too great to be hindered by the mere fact that he was fished from the Atlantic more dead than alive, for he persevered and has just been made a full-fledged captain, running between the West Coast and the Hawaiian Islands.

RUDY VALLEY'S MOTHER DIES AT WESTBROOK

Westbrook, Me., July 15—(U.P.)—Rudy Vallee's invalid mother, who helped him become the ido of radio's millions, died today with her favorite son at her bedside.

Death came to Mrs. Katherine L. Vallee, 61, shortly before noon after a gallant three-year struggle against heart disease, high blood pressure and complications.

Mexican Protest Frees Consul

Engaging the attention of the Mexican Government, which has transmitted a strong protest to Washington, the jailing of Adolfo Dominguez (upper left), Mexican consul at Chicago, on a charge of contempt of court, holds the threat of serious international complications even though he was released after a few hours in jail and the order committing him was expunged from court records. Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green (lower right) sentenced Senor Dominguez for contempt when the two men participated in a verbal clash in the former's courtroom. A few hours later, Judge Joseph Burke (lower left) released the Mexican consul. To avoid further complications, Judge Green expunged his order sentencing Senor Dominguez, but the latter's counsel, T. Russell Baker (upper right) maintains that such an order does not constitute satisfaction and that an official apology may be demanded.
